Dear Tom:

I deeply regret that I didn't make it back to the office today by 1 p. m. My secretary told me that you came in right on time. I had been delayed leaving the office for a luncheon appointment and then discovered I had matters to discuss with a group of men that was going to take longer than the hour I had originally allotted. Please forgive me for causing you any especial trouble.

I have just looked over your booklet "International Mission." It looks like an exciting idea. You and I had talked about it before reading your plans which made it even more exciting. Please be assured of my prayers and deep interest in what you are planning on doing with this program. It looks like a great idea.

Fraternally yours,

John Allen Chalk
